

Emotional, Mental Health and Well-Being Policy

Context and Rationale

At Ribblesdale School, we have a strong ethos and culture of well-being. School leaders prioritise emotional wellness and positive emotional health for our pupils and strive to create an environment where everyone feels safe, secure, and supported. We have a strong focus on building relationships between staff, pupils, and parents. Our personal development curriculum takes a pro-active approach to teaching pupils how to care for themselves mentally and physically and our school ethos of "A mind to be kind" is embedded into day-to-day life. Pupils at Ribblesdale gain an understanding of the protected characteristics, as we encourage them to resist stigma and discrimination and instead celebrate diversity and individuality.

Our broad and enriched curriculum helps pupils to develop confidence and self-esteem which are key components of a successful and fulfilling life. We also celebrate pupils' positive contributions to the school community through awarding house points, communications to parents, and school assemblies. Working alongside our well-being ambassadors we gather feedback from pupils about how we can further support and promote the overall well-being of our young people.

In addition to our whole school approach, we identify pupils who may require bespoke and targeted support. The pastoral team are equipped with the knowledge and confidence to make referrals to various outside agencies to support our young people and their families where appropriate. We strongly believe that if our pupils and staff are emotionally and mentally well, then everything else will follow.
